The parade went to Fairview cemetery, where the exercises were to be held. The principal number of the program was the oration delivered by Colonel J. J. Steadman, formerly department commander of the Grand Army.

The speaker referred to the fact that in other lands the resources of art and literature and song have been exhausted to perpetuate the memory of those who successfully followed the paths of ambition. This nation, overlooking ambition, faced the perils of battle, the sacrifices of disastrous war, because duty called to action. Reference was made to the causes that led up to the war of the rebellion. The blessings that came to the people of both sections by the happy ending of the war created a nation whose power today is greater on land and sea than any single power on the globe. Clem F. Kimball delivered the oration of the day. After a tender allusion to the thinning of the ranks of the veterans of the '60s and the veneration felt for them by the generation which is now holding the foreground, he dealt at some length as to the justice of the war in which they had engaged for the perpetuation of the union. He then said:

engaged for the perpetuation of the union. He then said:

By divine grace your lives have been spared to know that the principles for which you fought are now universally conceded to be right. The hatreds and prejudices of a deadly sectionalism are swept away. You behold warriors of both armies sitting side by side in the councils of the nation, both striving for its welfare. But a few days ago a memorial to the l'lustrious Grant was unveiled in the national capital and a noted ex-confederate soldier arose and demanded to share in the glory, henor and reverence paid to him who had once been his enemy. But more glorious than all was that day when the young southern chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse than chivalry and the gallant northern boys went forth to fight for a people worse the same old flag.

Since last we paid this tribute to the warrior dead new veterans have returned from war. They are about us here, they are of our very best blood and parontage. But alla they, too, are not all here. Dread disease has claimed its victims, and a great, generous nation to the solace of the seddened parents brought back from far distant shores the ashes of the brave. This day for the first time we decorate the graves of our soldier boys. Like you old soldiers still with us they were boys; like you they fought for an unfortunate race of neople; they warred to give to loreign races a liberty those races have bever known; a peace they have never enjoyed and a government they do not ye; underst

To Heroes Living and Dead.

To our heroes living and dead is our mighty nation grateful. It has pensioned the living, has cared for the widows and orphans: its people have erected monuments and memorials, and today crowned the living with the wreath of love and praise as they lay upon the tomb their chaplet of flowers. These flowers will wither and blow away, our words here spoken will soon be forgotten: even the monuments to your dead will crumble like the columns of Marathon, which have been in Onawa. Or honor points the hallowed spot Where valor proudly sleeps."

Nearly thirty-seven years ago, when some of you with Grant and Sherman were about to average Chickamauga at Chattanooga, upon the sacred field of Gettysburg, where but a few months before the civil war had met its crisis and Lee had met defeat, the sad-faced Lincoln, his lips touched as by the finger of God, spoke these words: "The brave men living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated this battlefield far above our power to add or detract. "It is rather for us to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us " that the nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom and that the government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Each year with the bloom of flowers there shall be dedicated anew to your memory, not alone marble and granite, but the life and spirit of this great nation. It will endure longer than the pyramids and linger as long as the story of Moses, It cannot crumble, for its foundation is eternal truth; Rs base is sanctity of home; its columns of protection, redress and justice support the superstructure and dome of human happiness and human weal, and over it may there ever hover the white dove of peace.

Broke Into Kimball's Factory. Kimball Bros.' factory at the corner of Ninth street and Eleventh avenue was broken into yesterday afternoon by three men. A member of a Northewestern rail way switching crew saw them as they broke a window and filed over the sill. He hunted the nearest telephone and sent in an alarm to police headquarters. The patrol wagon with several officers was immediately sent out and in ten minutes hove in sight of the factory. One of the three thieves was on the watch and when he saw the officers coming gave the alarm. The trio piled out of the window by which they had entered and flew across country with the police in hot pursuit. The police won the race and the three worthies were landed in the city jail. They gave their names as C. B. Cook, William Laughlin and Chester Cook.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. With her whole being undergoing a change, the seeds of female troubles are sown. Little menstrual disorders, if neglected at the time, will follow the woman all her life and grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are robbing homes and filling graveyards, proves this. Yet, irregular and painful menstruation is often permitted to go on sapping the life and energy, while Wine of Cardui, the positive relief for these ills, is on the shelf of every drug store. Wine of Cardui helps the maiden sustain the shock of puberty by maintaining a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow.

Wine f Cardui

is an emmenagogue of great power and works wonders in strengthening the delicate and sensitive female organs. Many young women owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. No woman should give up hope until she has given Wine of Cardui a trial. If thousands have secured relief through it, why not you?

I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time; was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui with Thedford's Black-Draught when needed and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me. MISS DELLA M.
